Vermont's fair price commission is going out of business Nov. 1. The fair price commissions in most parts of the country have been largely a threat.

The time is almost up when men of the party can hope to gain prominence by announcing that they are going over to the other party. Cheap, short society.

The Goddard seminary trustees are going on the basis that a star athlete the man who backs the line harder whether it be on the football field or his studies. In other words, as athletes must maintain the same scholastic standing as the other members of the school, with a passing mark of per cent. It's a good rule to go by.

Bradford's excellent little hotel is to be closed during the winter months while the proprietor is sojourning in the south. Bradford can perhaps worry along through the winter without the hotel, but the shutting of the hostelry will prove somewhat of a handicap to the business of the community. Perhaps they can improvise an "annex" as is done in some places.

The Saturday Evening Post got out a million dollars' worth of advertising, gratis, when Cox made a newspaper attack on that journal; then it got about another million dollars' worth, gratis, when Cox repeated his attack. It has been the way of Cox to get out a million dollars' worth of advertising, gratis, when Cox repeated his attack. It has been the way of Cox to get out a million dollars' worth of advertising, gratis, when Cox repeated his attack.

M. J. Hapgood, many times town representative from Peru, "cannot resist the temptation," so he says, and therefore he is running again for the same office as an independent. Possibly the voters of Peru cannot resist the temptation to take a fall out of Mr. Hapgood. The election returns from Peru will furnish a good deal of interest, especially to those who have become acquainted with Mr. Hapgood during his long service at the State house.

DISJOINTED DAYLIGHT SAVING ACTION.

The experiment with a partial daylight saving system, which closes today, has not been wholly successful, or seven months New England has been worrying along as best it could while Massachusetts and New York were traveling an hour ahead as to official time. A few cities and towns in various parts of New England attempted to change their time to conform with Massachusetts and they found themselves out of tune with the remainder of the state; and several of them reversed their action long before the scheduled time for the closing of daylight saving in Massachusetts. The railroads of Vermont and other New England states which are closely associated with Massachusetts, and New York as well, were compelled to set their timetables one hour ahead so that there would be proper train connections at junction points. This interfered quite seriously with the trend of events in the states which were guided by standard time. To be sure, some of the confusion incident to the early stages of the daylight saving system in Massachusetts has been eliminated in Vermont and other states not under the daylight saving system; but there nevertheless remains a lack of cohesion, even under the adoption of the latter states to the time of Massachusetts. This lack of cohesion is so pronounced as to make it seem inadvisable for any one state to attempt to engage another year in a daylight saving system unless all the states follow the same course. At least, here in New England, where we are so bound up together, no move of this kind should be inaugurated unless all the states of the geographical division enter upon the arrangement.

A theatrical troupe, after a dreary and unsuccessful tour, finally arrived in a small New Jersey town. That night, though, there was no furor or general uprising of the audience, there was enough hand clapping to arouse the troupe's dejected spirits.

The leading man stepped to the footlights after the first act and bowed profoundly. Still the clapping continued. When he went behind the scenes he saw a stagehand laughing heartily.

"Well, what do you think of that?" asked the actor throwing out his chest.

"What d'ye mean?" replied the stagehand.

"Handclapping!"

"Yes, replied the Theatricalian: 'they are giving me enough applause to show they appreciate me.'"

"D'ye call that applause?" inquired the old fellow. "Why, that's not applause. That's the audience killing bouquies."—The Pathfinder.

The suits and overcoats you'll see here cannot be surpassed, at our price, anywhere in the world.

No, we haven't a $100 suit in our store, but have plenty of the class that is priced at $100 in many cities.

We have good Suits, $25.00 up to $75.00.

Overcoats, $25 to $75.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

More of Orange County Politics.

Mr. Editor: We thought that our people had placed the stamp of their disapproval upon the assumption of autocratic powers by those in places of power, honor or trust, but we note that the Orange County Republican committee feel that they are better qualified to select a candidate for the office of assistant judge than all the voters at the primaries.

It seems that Candidate Kent obtained a majority of the votes in at least 14 towns of the county, still this committee who were chosen to serve the voters not to command them have seen fit to desire this resignation of Mr. Kent, and order the voters to vote for a candidate of their own selection. We are not a politician and do not pretend to understand whether this is an inspiration of that one of the committee whom the voters did not see fit to endorse, and who defeated at the primaries—still assumes to dictate his will to the freemen, or whether the grouch of this defeated candidate has become the grouch of all.

STOWE

Miss Harriet Adams, who has finished her work at Lexington, Mass., and who, with her sister, Miss Jessie Adams, is visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Adams, at Moscow, was given a surprise party and shower by Mrs. H. E. Shaw and daughter, Miss Ruby Shaw, at their home on Park street Thursday evening. The rooms were decorated with black cats, jack-o-lanterns and black and gold paper festoons appropriate to Halloween. Mrs. Dow R. Smith presided at a witches' cauldron. During the evening, Miss Adams' attention was called to a large number of gifts of out glass, china, pyrex ware and linen. Singing was enjoyed, and refreshments were served. About 35 were present. Miss Adams is to be married soon to Matthew G. Thatcher of Dudley, Mass. They will make their home at Norwood, Mass., where Mr. Thatcher has a position as assistant manager of a large farm. Miss Adams was for several years an efficient and popular clerk at H. E. Shaw's store and before that at Eddy and Macutchan's. She has since taken a nurse's training at a private institution at Wellesley, Mass., and since has followed work of that nature.

Mrs. Harry E. Pike has returned from a two weeks' visit in Boston and vicinity.

Miss Lotta Straw picked sweet white violet blossoms Oct. 26.

The Stowe high school junior class is preparing a play, "Aboard a Slow Train in Missouri," to be given Nov. 24. Shackett and Chase's orchestra will furnish music for dancing.

The seniors of Stowe high school are organizing a school paper, "The Rite-U-R," which promises to be a great success.

Musical Director Mrs. A. D. Lynch conducted a musical assembly in school Tuesday morning, the first this year. Miss Southard, who had charge of assembly Wednesday morning, gave an interesting talk on Mrs. Morgan's address on "Songs That Live." Solos were rendered by Beatrice Kaiser and Donald Douglass and a duet by Misses Collins and Sleeper.

Miss Bresnahan, state supervisor, of Burlington visited the village school Wednesday.

Mrs. Eva Burt is at the Fanny Allen hospital for treatment.

Mrs. Eunice Pottle went Friday to pass Halloween at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. C. Wheeler, in Waterville.

Snowflakes were in the air Friday, the first time in the season.

Rev. E. C. Hayward will conduct a service at the North Hollow schoolhouse Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Back of Us and You

Back of every member bank in the Federal Reserve System is the strength of the organized banking resources of the country.

In this present period of price adjustment, this great system is protecting industry and labor from a swift reaction that might prove destructive.

It is helping us to get back to normal credit processes surely but carefully, thus protecting investments and saving labor from severe loss consequent upon the stagnation of industry.

This mighty chain of banks is stronger than ever before and its ability to meet every test is financial insurance to you.

We want you to know that the Federal Reserve System is back of us and back of you, and as it serves us it also serves you.

It is the principle of co-operation among the national banks and the scientific handling of credit—a true Federal or United States Reserve for your benefit and security.

Northfield arrived here the first of the week and are visiting relatives.

Mrs. M. M. Collins, who has conducted a millinery and ladies' furnishing goods store here for the past five years, has closed out her stock of goods and, Wednesday, sold her household furniture at auction. Her real estate is also for sale. She plans to spend the winter in the Bermuda Islands.

The woman's home missionary society will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. R. A. Davidson.

The school teachers have moved from the upstairs tenement of F. M. Page to that of Miss Jennie Wrinkle. The latter will live with Mr. and Mrs. Page, while it is expected Mrs. Anna Page will move to the tenement vacated by the teachers.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Church and Mrs. George Newton, her mother, of West Topham were visitors at C. H. Heath's the first of the week.

The annual church sale and chicken-pie supper held Wednesday afternoon and evening at the Methodist church was the most successful the ladies' aid society ever held. The various booths were attractively arranged and were well patronized, nearly everything being sold out early. The supper, from 5 to 7 o'clock, drew a large number of townspeople. The exact sum realized by the society is not known at this writing but is estimated to be around $300.

Mrs. Reta McAllister has finished work as composer in the office of the Groton Times.

"Well, no, there hasn't no special news out my way," replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark., to the inquiry of the editor of the Tumbinville Torch of Liberty. "Come to think, though, Iafe Sagg got over a two months' attack of the influenza by taking a quart of bone-dry licker that some feller brung him one night."

"Ah, that is good," returned the scribe.

"Well, I d'now. You see, it don't 'pear like he's ever going to get over the attack of the bone-dry licker."—Kansas City Star.

Ice Cream

Ice Cream is no longer considered a luxury only. People now look upon it as an article of food and rightly so, for real ice cream is a food. When you give the children money to buy Ice Cream it is not wasted on a luxury, but is spent for a food that the kiddies actually need.

The new Granite City Co-operative Creamery are now manufacturing an Ice Cream that is exceptionally rich in butter fat. It is not a cream made to appear rich by a process of manufacturing and the use of large quantities of gelatine, but actually contains butter fat far in excess of the amount required by the state law. It is the product of healthy cows, every cow whose products enter this plant must first have passed a tuberculin test applied under State and Federal supervision.

Order this delicious food for your table. Insist that you be served with it at the Ice Cream parlors. Specify the Granite City Co-operative product. It is safe for the kiddies, and remember that every dollar you spend for it helps a local industry, and goes into the pockets of our local farmers.
